DETAILED ACTION

Double Patenting

Claims 1-28 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-14 of U.S. Patent No. 6,715,404. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the claims are an obvious variation of the patented claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 17 and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Melandri.

There is disclosed in Melandri a system for dispersing a fermenting liquid across a surface of body of the liquid, the system comprising: an inlet 5 having a central axis; at least one rotatable surface (see figure 2) for redirecting a flow of the fermenting liquid through the inlet from a substantially axial direction to a substantially radial direction; and at least one surface 10 for dispersing the flow of the fermenting liquid having been redirected both in a first region, relatively closer to the axis, and in a second region, relatively farther from the axis, as the flow of the fermenting liquid having been redirected falls by gravity in an axial direction.

Art Unit: 1761

Claim 21 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Siddall et al.

There is disclosed in Siddall a sprinkler comprising: a nozzle 60; a support arm 61 having a first end attached to the nozzle; a plurality of vanes 73 forming a vane structure 64 rotatably attached to a second end of the support arm; and a conical shaped structure 66 attached to a center of a top planar surface of the vane structure.

In regards to the use of the sprinkler in a fermenting system, such a recitation is intended use and provides no structural limitations to the claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 18, 19 and 25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Melandri in view of Siddall et al.

Melandri, as discussed above, discloses all of the claimed subject matter except sprinkler system having a plurality of rotatable vanes and a support arm for connecting the vanes to a nozzle.

Siddall discloses the use of a rotatable vane structure and support arm therefor to distribute a liquid. It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to substitute the sprinkler system of Melandri with the one disclosed in Siddall, in order to provide an alternative sprinkler which does not make use of excessive materials such as piping to distribute the liquid.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1-16 are allowable over the prior art of record.

Claims 22-24 and 26-28 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
